

EZRA SAMPLES SHOT AND KILLED

At Madisonville Early Monday Morning by Claude Witty, at Cardwell Livery Barn

NEGRO CARRIED TO HOPKINSVILLE

Ezra Samples was instantly killed and his brother, Elbert Samples, painfully wounded, when Claude Witty, negro employed in the livery stable of D. F. Cadwell, at Madisonville, opened fire on the two boys with a .38-calibre bull-dog revolver in the rear of the stable Sunday morning at 7 o'clock following a quarrel over the way the boys had put the harness on a horse that was to be used to a hearse. Witty was arrested and taken to Hopkinsville. The tragedy created much excitement and threats of lynching the murderer prompted the officers to spirit him away to the Christian county bastille for safe keeping.

The shot that killed Ezra Samples was fired with the revolver only a few inches from the young man's chest, and his clothing was set on fire. The ball entered the left breast, just below the collar bone, ranging downward and causing instant death. Elbert was shot through the calf of his right leg, the ball lodging in the flesh of his left leg.

Propose To Supply the Government Explosives

Pierre S. du Pont has written to Secretary of War Baker, pointing out the seriousness of this country's dependence on foreign nations for supply of raw materials for nitric acid supply essential for explosives. He says the du Pont Co. has purchased the right of one of the leading processes used abroad and has drafted a bill to protect public interest and justify investment of capital. Bill provides the company shall deliver to the United States for military or naval purposes all, or any part, of the output of nitric acid at a price which the Secretary of War shall determine reasonable. Consulting engineer of the company says construction of proposed plant would involve investment of $20,000,000 on the part of the firm but that its establishment was impossible under present water power laws. Bill will probably be presented in the Senate for grant covering a point for a period of 50 years, at the end of which time the Government is to have the option of taking over the plant at a fair valuation.

Frank Coffee Dead

Frank Coffee, who has been telegraph operator and ticket agent for the L. & N. at Guthrie for many years died at that place last Friday, following a short illness. Mr. Coffee had been in bad health for some time. He was a member of the various Masonic bodies of Madisonville. He is about forty years of age and is survived by a wife. Funeral services were at Hopkinsville Sunday afternoon, and Robert Sory, of Madisonville, representing the Masonic lodge, had charge of that part of the service.

Price of Gasoline

Washington is firmly convinced that the Standard Oil Company might, if it chose, prevent the constant rise in the price of gasoline. One suggestion is that an embargo be placed upon gasoline, thereby shutting off the European market. In view of the Government's position in relation to the shipment of all other kinds of supplies to the war countries, it is not likely that attempts to regulate the price of gasoline will be along the embargo route. Another legislative proposal favors the seizing of the properties of the Standard Oil. Another congressman thinks the situation might be saved if the Interior Department would get busy and dig a lot of oil wells throughout the country. The automobile manufacturers are at odds that something drastic be done, as the price of gasoline will interfere with the sale of their 1916 machines.

Married in Nortonville

Mr. David Walter Dement, well known young farmer living near this place, and Miss Lora Denny, of Nortonville, daughter of Thomas Denny, were united in marriage last Friday evening, the ceremony taking place at the home of bride. The bride for the past three years has been chief operator for the Cumberland Telephone Co. at Nortonville. She formerly lived at Hanson. She is an attractive young lady, well known over the county.

DOORS CLOSED FOR CHURCH SERVICES

At seven o'clock sharp the Club room was closed and all boys present were requested to attend some church. By a vote it was decided that all go together to the Methodist church. This was done with the best of spirit, and it is thought that every Sunday night the Club room will be closed. This shows the correct attitude of the boys and it is believed it will be met with favor by the citizens of our town.

Fire Escape is Now Complete

The new fire escape at the school building is now completed and a test will be given of the efficiency of this escape at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The public is invited to attend this trial. The details have not yet been fully completed but it is possible that the teachers will come out first followed by the children of their respective grades. There is no danger or trouble whatever attached to the method of escape, all one has to do is to enter at the proper opening and sit down, the inclined cork crew does the rest.

New Member Elected

At a business meeting of the Boy's Club of Earlinton, Friday night several new members were elected, also the following honorary members: Paul Price, Dr. Watts, Paul Moore and Dan Evans.

Saturday night the club was honored with a visit of Geo. Atkinson, honorary member. Mr. Atkinson made the club a present of $10.00, which was greatly appreciated.

Rev. Hawkins has volunteered to devise a means of invitation, and we are all anxious for the time when we shall get a "whack" at the new member.

The question of chairs is yet a persisting one, and any assistance along that line would be greatly appreciated. B. C. of E.

The Minimum Wage

The Nolan bill provides for a minimum wage of $90 per month for employees of the federal government. The hearings on the bill have developed some startling conditions in the public service. Although the standards of living and general wage scales have been changed time and again to meet conditions in the business world, many laborers employed by Uncle Sam, are working on the same basis established fifty-five years ago. A grave digger at Arlington cemetery was brought before the committee, and it was found that he has been receiving $10 per month. On this sum he attempts to support a large family. It develops that this man has been providing the last resting places for Generals, Admirals and other military heroes to whose memories beautiful monuments have been erected. The investigation also discloses that there are a great many people in the Government service for $720 per annum, with no probabilities of increased pay. Considerable pressure is being used in the hopes that Congress will set an example to the rest of the nation, by establishing a minimum wage that will provide at least a decent living for its most menial employees.

Would Return to Battling With Swords and Bayonets

Wm. Marconi says German advantage in science has now been overcome by the Allies, who possess equal if not better flying machines, submarines and big guns. He mentions the possible discovery of electrical apparatus which would send waves, exploding powder at a distance. If successful this would mean a reversion to sword and bayonet fighting, as it would be unsafe to be near any explosive.

Hudson Maxim on Length of the War

New York.—In a letter to the Times, Hudson Maxim says he believes the war will last from three to five years yet. He points out that the Germans are entrenched in enemies' countries and adds that it requires three times as many men and the expenditure of three times as much ammunition to dislodge a well-entrenched enemy as it does to hold a strongly entrenched position. Mr. Maxim says that all of the talk about starving out Germany is empty vaporing. He concludes by saying:—

"England is unassailable in her isolated position. She may possibly lose Egypt, may possibly lose India, but her overseas colonies cannot be assailed; and should she lose Egypt and India, England would yet not be whipped. It is my prediction that the war will last from three to five years yet, and that it is more likely to be seven years than three."

"WHISKY AND GUN" BLAMED FOR CRIME

Christian Citizens Scored For Not Aiding Grand Jury's Investigation

Hopkinsville, Ky., April 8.—In its final report, submitted today, the Christian County Grand Jury says, "We verily believe whisky and revolvers are responsible for at least 90 per cent of the crimes we have investigated." It also says that "idleness and laziness, with a disposition to live upon the wages of others" is also partially responsible for many crimes.

The grand jury criticizes citizens of the county, saying that too many of them are prone to "wink" at crimes rather than assist in punishing the guilty. It states that it has thoroughly investigated charges of extravagance and graft made during the road bond campaign recently and finds that these charges founded on mere "rumors" and that no tangible evidence of such irregularities was presented to them. Consequently it gives all county officials a clean bill of health.

Wonderful Work of Relief Makes American Famous

Richard Harding Davis in the Times says that the German government has invited H. O. Hoover, the American who has directed relief for the people of Belgians, to feed and protect destitute people of Serbia. Mr. Davis says that Mr. Hoover, acting as agent of the American people and of French and English governments, has each month distributed to destitute Belgians $10,000,000. Of this, the money sent from America, even including the $4,000,000 donated by the Rockefeller, could not have kept the Belgians alive for seven weeks. Position of Serbia is claimed to be most desperate. Help that was expected from Italy has not come and now at Brindisi, three hours' steaming from Durazzo, there are 18,000 tons of rice, flour and sugar, sent from America, which the Italian government has not forwarded. Mr. Davis says the Germans have stricken Serbia and already 2,000,000 hogs and cattle have been driven out of the country into German territory, while Serbian people are reduced to eating horse flesh.

The Way With The Irish

Passing through a military hospital, a distinguished visitor noticed a private in one of the Irish regiments who had been terribly injured. To the orderly the visitor said: "That's a bad case. What are you going to do with him?" "He's going back, sir," replied the orderly. "Going back!" said the visitor, in surprised tones. "Yes," said the orderly, "He thinks he knows who done it."—Tit Bits.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

J. S. Cullinan ON CITIZENSHIP.

Mr. J. S. Cullinan, President of the Texas Economic League, in inviting the people to study and discuss citizenship and to give special attention to the problems of government, said in part: "Before we can intelligently study so important a subject as citizenship we must first define it. What is citizenship? Who is the best American citizen? Search the statute books for a definition of citizenship and unless one is a member of the legal profession we immediately become entangled in a labyrinth of confusing and oftentimes contradictory laws, seeking to promote or restrain most every form of human activity; much of them good, some of them bad and others indifferent. But laws come and go; the Constitution is permanent. The preamble of our Federal Constitution states that our government is organized to give its citizens liberty and happiness. Read the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States and one cannot escape the conclusion that the best American citizen is he who is most free, patriotic, just, happy and active and who hands down to posterity a civilization more capable than he found it. The spirit of our country is freedom and no man can become a true American citizen unless he is free.

"Turning a moment from documents of State perhaps the best authority on citizenship and one universally accepted by the public, is Webster's International Dictionary, which defines a citizen as 'A member of a State; a person, native or naturalized, of either sex, who owes allegiance to government, and is entitled to reciprocal protection from it.' Further: 'A citizen as such is entitled to the protection of life, liberty and property at home and abroad.' "We now have before us the authoritative definition of citizenship by both government and society and in order that the most humble citizen may feel perfectly free to enter into a study and discussion of this subject I will briefly outline my conception of what citizenship involves, for the work of the Texas Economic League will be to maintain if the most lowly citizen does not feel free to give serious thought and expression to his obligation to government and his responsibility to his fellow men.

"Applied to able-bodied adult males, with whom I take it we will have chiefly to do, a citizen's duty, in return for the rights, privileges and protection outlined above, would seem to be: First, to expend sufficient labor in production, on auxiliary occupations, viz., manufacture, transportation and distribution, to support himself and his family in comfort. Second, conform to all laws framed in the interest of society under the Constitution. Third, contribute his just proportion to the maintenance of government in personal time, payment of taxes or, if need be, bearing arms in the defense of the country.

"In reaching the above conclusions I have assumed that under our system of government citizens are owners in common and are entitled to the rights and benefits of government during the term of their natural lives and for each period only."

BETTER ROADS FOR MONTANA

Governor Stewart Makes Plea For Improved Highways.

OLD TRAILS AND NEW.

When the Pleasure Vehicle Came Into Use the Question of Better Roads Appeared as a Small Cloud Upon the Community Horizon—Modern Highways Meet New Conditions.

Time was when any sort of avenue of communication between communities was looked upon as fairly adequate, writes Governor Sam V. Stewart of Montana to the Anaconda Standard. The country was sparsely settled, demands for hurried communication were negligible and methods of transportation were of the crudest. The chief user of the trails which through courtesy was sometimes dignified by the term "big road," was the freighter, the bullwhacker, who knew that between the beginning and the end of his trip lay a long strip of soil whereon he might expect any variety of weather and encounter soils that were of varying degrees of preparedness for his trail. But the fact worried him not at all. He employed the best means at hand and relied upon the almost unlimited power of his humble animals to pull him through.

But the wheels of progress made a revolution or two, and the pleasure vehicle came into use, whereupon the question of better roads appeared. The difference between a trail and a highway is vast in comfort, in utility and in cost, and the latter item had much to do with keeping the movement back. A bit of this system was evolved, whereby a little work was done at long intervals upon the roads, and then for long periods they were left to take care of themselves. The result was partially satisfactory so long as nature was kind and the weather of a character to make travel pleasant. But at times the elements conspired against the roadmakers, and it was often the case that the driver found as much of his vehicle below the surface as above it.

By and by men began to figure from the economic side of the question, and it was found that in the road that lay between the farmer and his market was to be found the difference between a balance and a deficit when it came to marketing his crop. It required no argument to demonstrate that the man who could make a trip to market in one day, where he had formerly occupied two days was making a pronounced saving—was economizing in horseflesh and in farm utensils and winning an extra day that would prove of value to him in his ranch work.

Evolution in machinery building brought us finally to the automobile, the pleasure vehicle and the truck, and the question of improved highways became one of pressing importance. The owner of the pleasure car cried aloud for a better roadway, and the farmer joined in the chorus because it had become possible for him at a moderate outlay to bring himself many hours nearer market, provided the roads were in passable condition. The combination of rural resident and city owner and city business man was irresistible.

To meet the condition thus brought about is now the problem engrossing the attention of city, county and state, authorities the country over. Engineers are giving their best thought to the problem of evolving the best method of road building at a minimum expense, and the authorities are striving to give the people what they are calling for in so far as the funds available will permit.

The difference between good roads and the bad variety is the difference between industry and sloth, between pride and carelessness, between the don't care community and the community that will be satisfied with nothing short of the best. The transition from a road of quagmires and ruts is not one that can be wrought in a day or a year, but the county that devotes every possible energy each year to accomplishing the utmost in the way of highways thereby marks itself as progressive and filled with the vision of greater and better things to come from improving the resources at its hand.

One of the greatest benefactors of our time was he who made it possible to transport two tons over our country roads where less than one could be transported before. The inventor and the manufacturer have made it possible for the people to live in far greater comfort, to travel in luxurious ease and to thereby win a competence where such a thing was impossible under old conditions, and the people owe it to themselves to discharge their implied obligations. I believe that, so far as Montana is concerned, they are doing this, and the time is coming, and not far distant at that, when the number of good roads enthusiasts in the state will tally exactly with the number of citizens on the census rolls.

Over the Rockies. Colorado and Wyoming will unite in building a highway from Denver through the Rocky Mountain National park, in northern Colorado, to the Yellowstone National park, in Wyoming.

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARICE MORIN, 22 Russell Street, Taunton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every month rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a safe and pure remedy made from roots and herbs, much suffering might be avoided.

New Electrical Devices

New York—An electrical engineer, who keeps close watch on all new inventions requiring electric current said the other day that in 1915 quite a number of new devices had been patented and proved commercially practicable.

Among them, he said, were an electrically operated dish washer, a junior electric range for young girls who wish to play and at the same time to learn something about house-keeping and cooking, several varieties of electric lamps, and a portable electric drill and hammer. The electric hammer will strike 4,000 blows a minute, saving 15 percent in power over the pneumatic drill.

Several improvements were made in telephone devices and other signaling apparatus. One of the new devices is that of a signal lamp the light of which can be seen from any angle either day or night, being visible at a distance of 1,000 feet in daylight. There were a large number of electrically operated toys patented and to provide for their operation a toy transformer was invented by means of which a low voltage current may be obtained from an alternating lighting circuit.

G. Grob, Houston, Texas. Obtainable everywhere.

Some Easy Marks

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure-New York, N. Y.

To let you into a part of the plot at the beginning, so that it may not be so great a puzzle to your brain, it may be stated that there was a widow named Ridgeway living in Colville, a town of 2,000 inhabitants.

There was living, also, at Beach Hill a lawyer named Hammond. Beach Hill and Colville were forty miles apart, but the lawyer and the widow had somehow become acquainted, and perhaps they would have fallen in love had either been able to support the other. Five miles from Beach Hill was a place called Widowville. There was a good reason for it. Five widowers, all farmers, had built their houses there. Each widower had a lot of children, numbering from five to eight.

Between Beach Hill and Widowville was a farm of eighty acres called the Lester farm. In seven years it had had five tenants. The soil was so poor that they all starved out. This farm the Widow Ridgeway leased.

Of course the five widowers of Widowville heard of the widow's arrival and what she proposed to do, and they picked up their ears and said that something would be doing. Enos Cook, who had the biggest number of children, was the first one to drive over and introduce himself.

Jason Turner was the next caller, and he went over the same ground and came away feeling just as good. So it was with Luke Harper, Moses Swift and Philenus Johnson. All looked upon the Widow Ridgeway as a prize to be won, and each one determined in his own mind to win her, though he didn't say anything to the others about it.

Two weeks had passed when they all called again, and this time their talk with the widow was more free.

It was at the third call that the plot developed. If the farmers could spare a little time from their own work they might plow a little and plant a little for her and thus help her along. Of course they would. They would be only too glad to do it. What crop did the widow think would pay her best? She promptly answered that potatoes would probably be the best selling crop. How many acres? Why, she had figured out that about sixty acres would be the right thing.

Sixty acres of potatoes! Why, the average farmer thinks he has a big planting if he puts in ten. The widowers elevated their eyebrows in something like horror, but after a conference lasting an hour it was agreed to come to the widow's figures. When it came time for plowing the five brought their teams and plows and worked happily together. When they couldn't come themselves they sent their hired men. Sixty acres is a big field, but it was eventually plowed and dragged. It was then that the widow made an announcement. She gathered together the five hired men at the back door and said:

"My friends, do not think I lack modesty when I tell you that I know you are all in love with me and intend to propose marriage. I like you all. You are good and true men. I cannot as yet say that I prefer one to another, but I am going to carry out a plan. The one that does the most for me in this matter of the potato crop I shall look upon as being the most worthy to become my husband."

Satisfaction gleamed in the eyes of every widower.

To plant sixty acres of ground takes a heap of seed potatoes. The widow didn't have a peck. The five farmers chipped in and bought them for her. They planted them for her. When it was time they plowed them out and hoed them for her. Again, when it was time they dug them for her. When the tubers were ripe for digging the potato trust sent a man to offer 50 cents a bushel, which was the usual price. Two weeks later, after it had been ascertained that not another potato would be offered for sale in that part of the state, it raised its offer to 75 cents, and the widow took it.

When the last potato had been loaded up and driven away the widow Ridgeway gave a banquet to the five farmers, and it was known that her choice was to be announced. The farmers noticed that eight plates were placed on the table. That meant two more persons were to sit down. They arrived. It was Lawyer Hammond and the Baptist preacher from the village. What business had brought them? Inquired each farmer of himself, but no one had solved the question when the banquet was finished, and the lawyer rose up and said:

"Gentlemen, this has been a great race between you should have the widow's heart and hand. You have all done nobly. Each one of you has shown himself to be a good and true man. In fact, you all have been so worthy of this good woman's love that she cannot decide which one of you to accept. She cannot marry the whole five of you, as you must know, and rather than give herself to one and make the four others miserable for life she has decided to marry the sixth man, which is me." The marriage took place, but there were five men who did not smile nor offer a congratulation. Their faces were very solemn as they slid out of the house and started for their homes, and on their way thither each one remarked to himself: "Gal darn my cats and dogs! If any one had told me that I was such an easy mark I'd have liked him all over a ten acre lot!"
